May Revive Defunct Interurban Line

The defunct Joliet & Eastern traction line shows signs of coming to life again. A meeting was held in Matteson one night last week. The people of Matteson are willing to give the line a right-of-way thru the village so that the tracks can be laid straight from the west end of the village parallel with the M. C. railroad, thus doing away with the present sharp curves. The line would then run under the elevated Illinois Central tracks, and would have to cross the M. C. tracks as a grade crossing. No further action can be taken until the Illinois Commerce Commission gives its consent to building the grade crossing. It is said the Associations of Commerce of Chicago Heights and Joliet, and the business men of Frankfort and Matteson are pushing the move to restore the line to operating again.

Legacy For Kind Act Won By Baggage Man

That it pays sometimes to be kind-hearted is borne out by the following story, which appeared in the Chicago papers Saturday, concerning the $500 legacy left to Sam Fulton, a baggage man on the milk train, by the late Chas. Moriarty of Mokena:

Sam Fulton, baggage man for the Rock Island, running on the milk train between Chicago and Joliet, has fallen heir to $500 as the result of a kindness to one of the dairy farmers along his route. Fulton lives in Joliet, and one day several years ago found a buyer for the surplus milk produced on the farm of Charles Moriarty of Mokena. It was entirely outside the duty of Sam to render this service, but he spent an extra hour when he reached Chicago to find the buyer. Then he forgot the incident until recently he was informed by an attorney at Mokena that the farmer had died and left "Sam Fulton, my friend," $500 by the terms of the will.

About ten years ago Fulton took the time to buy some whole wheat bread for another farmer when the latter was sick for a few days. This farmer later died, and every Thanksgiving day since then Sam has received a turkey. Although the farmer and his wife have long since passed away, the son continues to "remember Sam" at the request of his father and mother.

Memorial Day Program To Be Sponsored By The News-Bulletin

This month contains a holiday that every real red-blooded citizen should observe and pay tribute to the memory of those gallant men who laid down their lives on the altar of freedom that we might enjoy the blessings of the America which we know today. Instead of continual strife and warfare, as is the case in Europe, we are permitted to enjoy a life of peace and tranquility. Now it seems more than fitting that Memorial Day should be observed all the more. All of Mokena's civil war veterans, with the exception of Mills Knickerbocker, who is also claimed by New Lenox, have passed over to the Great Silent Army. We should not only reverence their memory, but also pay tribute to our own boys of the late Great World War.

This year the News-Bulletin, as a community paper, has taken up the responsibility of sponsoring the Memorial Day program, to be held in the village park, if the weather permits, and in case of unfavorable weather, the program will be rendered in the M. E. church. A very live program, full of excellent numbers, is under course of preparation. Excellent speakers, music, etc., will be provided, and the News-Bulletin is aiming to make this the best Decoration Day celebration held in the history of Mokena.

Of course this paper can only make the celebration the success it deserves to be by the concerted co-operation of all the citizens by way of service.

Mokena M. E. Sunday School To Banquet

The M. E. Sunday school is going to give a Mothers and Daughters banquet at the Hatch hall on the evening of May 23rd. A splendid program has been prepared. Rev. J. T. Thomas of the Trinity M. Christie Sipple is remodeling his place and is having a furnace installed. He is having the place made into flats. It is understood he is planning to offer the place for sale.

The Worth school baseball team won their second game, Friday, May 5th, when they defeated the Oak Lawn baseball team on the Worth grounds, the score being 20 to 0 at the end of five innings. The prospects for winning the pennant look very promising. The next game, Friday, May 12, will be played on the Worth diamond, with Palos as visitors. The game is to be called at 3 p. m., daylight saving time, at Lange's field. Everyone is requested to be present at the game and root for the boys, as they are surely entitled to a lot of encouragement for the good work they are doing. The last game will be played Friday, May 19th, against Evergreen Park, who are rated as having a very good team.

Frankfort Store Visited By Robber Band

Breaking the glass in the front door, burglars Friday night took three suit cases from the shelves of the Frank Kohlhaugen general merchandise store at Frankfort. filled them with cigars, jewelry and magazines, and disappeared.

No trace of the burglars has been found. The loss was not discovered until Saturday morning when the store was opened. A brick is believed to have been used in shattering the glass, as several were near by.

The loss, it is estimated, will be several hundred dollars, a large quantity of cigars and small articles of jewelry being taken. Sheriff Newkirk of Joliet was asked to assist in apprehending the burglars.

Orland Wins First Game of Season

The first ball game of the season was played here Sunday, Orland vs. Oaklawn. The score was 7 to 5 in favor of the home team. Batteries—Oaklawn, Banck and O'Brien; Orland, Klein and Nicolai. Taken to Infirmary

John Gurly, an old-time bachelor resident of Orland, was taken to the Oak Forest infirmary last Saturday. In the last year or so he had become somewhat demented and it was feared he would probably harm some child or set fire some place in the village, so, on complaint to Chas. Doctor, township supervisor, it was considered best that he be taken care of.

WILL COST $200,000 TO COMPLY WITH ORDER OF STATE COMMISSION

Illinois Bell Telephone Company's Answer to Illinois Commerce Commission's Citation Says Expenditure Is Unwarranted

It will cost the subscribers of the Illinois Bell Telephone Company approximately $200,000 to have the company comply with the citation order of the Illinois Commerce Commission requiring the company to show cause why its rates in the territory surrounding Chicago should not be reduced.

In reply to the citation order of the commission the company filed with it a sworn statement setting forth that the company's rate of return for its territory surrounding Chicago was less than four and one-half per cent, although it was allowed a return of six per cent by the Public Utilities Commission in the rate order entered December, 1920.

The company took the position that it should not be required to spend $200,000, the estimated cost of valuations and detailed statements requested by the commission, to justify rates which are earning less than five per cent.

Subscribers Pay Bill

The company set up in its answer that it was unjust to ask the company to make this expenditure; which, of course, would have to be reimbursed by increasing telephone rates in the territory affected.

It was asserted in the answer that the company's books are kept in accordance with the accounting rules of the Interstate Commerce Commission, which rules are those followed by the Illinois Commerce Commission as relating to telephone companies.

To force the company to make an accounting under the provisions of the commission's citation order would compel it to spend approximately $200,000, which is more than twenty-five per cent of the total amount received by it as a return on the value of its property devoted to the public use in the territory covered by the citation.

The company's answer declared that this was an unwarranted expenditure.

Company's Expenses Increased

The company is now operating under rates prescribed by the Public Utilities Commission in its order of December, 1920. It was estimated in this order that the company would have a return of about six per cent on its properties devoted to the public service. Instead of receiving this, the company's answer stated, its return has been less than four and one-half per cent. It also was pointed out in the company's answer that the company's expenses increased in 1921 over the amount estimated by the commission, and that its expenses for the first three months of 1922 were in excess of its expenses for the first three months of 1921, with due regard to the increased growth in number of telephones.

The commission took the company's answer under advisement.

Charges by the defense that one of the jurors already sworn in for the conspiracy trial of Gov. Len Small in Waukegan had unfairly discussed the case with others of the panel nullified the labors of a week. Because of these charges, which were made in two affidavits, Judge Claire C. Edwards broke into the panel of eight jurors already sworn and permitted attorneys for the governor to challenge peremptorily Charles Melville of Highland Park, a motorman employed by the North Shore electric line. Melville, according to the affidavits, referred to Grant Park, Ill., in a conversation with others jurors as "the place where the governor put the money in the fictitious bank." The defense argued that the remark showed prejudice against the governor, and Judge Edwards sustained the argument. The prosecution resisted the motion, but was overruled. The panel of eight was repaired by the selection of George Beckman, a bricklayer, who had been passed repeatedly by both sides. Before Beckman was sworn in, however, the state had challenged peremptorily Gus Nelson, another accepted venireman. The loss of Beckman and Nelson broke up entirely the almost completed third and final panel of four.

Indians, early waterways and highways of Illinois, Moravians and early Illinois lead miners were subjects of addresses at the twenty-third annual meeting of the Illinois State Historical society in Springfield. James H. Hamill of River Forest, who has for years studied the life and traits of Indians who formerly inhabited Illinois, spoke on "The American Indian." Under the topic "A Neglected Episode in the Life of Abraham Lincoln," James Shaw of Aurora told of the early agitation for improved waterways for Illinois. Abraham Lincoln, Mr. Shaw said, was a delegate to a national river and harbor convention in Chicago in 1847. Planning and partial completion of a great highway from Washington, D. C., to the southwest, was told by Dr. Charles B. Johnson of Champaign.

Marking the first step in litigation to disorganize the community high school district of Gillespie, Judge Frank W. Burton of Carlinville, while presiding on the Sangamon county Circuit court bench, granted Attorney Reece of Taylorville permission to file information in quo warranto. He ordered the writ returnable June 5, the opening day of the Madison county Circuit court. The quo warranto writ charges that the Gillespie district is illegal inasmuch as it does not conform with the act of the legislature authorizing organization of community high school districts because of the fact that the territory embraced is not compact and contiguous.

A girl learning to drive in the automobile of a schoolboy friend stalled the engine on the Howell crossing of the Chicago, North Shore & Milwaukee electric line near Libertyville. An express hit the automobile. Luella Hook, the girl, a freshman at Libertyville high school and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Hook, Gray's Lake, is in Victory Memorial hospital at Libertyville with a fractured skull and internal injuries that may cause her death.

Yielding to the wishes of her friends, Mrs. Mildred Brandt, recently elected police magistrate at the village of Winslow, has agreed to qualify and serve, although at first she declared she would not accept the office. Because it will take less time from her household work, Mrs. Brandt said she would hold court in the parlor of her home, instead of maintaining an office downtown.

Broken in health, W. A. Phares, once prominent in financial and business circles of Decatur, was brought back to face charges of embezzling $40,000 from the Pan-American Motors company, of which he was treasurer. He was captured at Columbus, Ohio.

Charged with violation of the narcotic act, and indicted by the federal grand jury, Dr. George Cass, for several terms health officer of Danville, was arrested and held in bonds of $2,000. The case will be heard at the June term of the Federal court.

Dr. Herbert Roberts, seventy, internationally known X-ray and radium specialist, died at his home in Belleville. His death was indirectly due to burns received while experimenting with Roentgen rays before present-day precautionary measures were known.

E. W. Herold, head of the department of chemistry and physics of Kewanee high school, leaves for the Philippine islands as teacher of chemistry under the direction of the bureau of Insular affairs.

John M. Hart, prominent Elmwood banker and former member of the Illinois legislature, died at his home in Elmwood.

A ruling by Attorney General Brundage that all mine operators in Illinois keep a certified hoisting engineer at their mines throughout the strike as long as there are men working below was announced. However, the attorney general's ruling was that if the certified engineer refused to work another engineer not certified might act in his place.

Principal George W. Bradley, of the Divernon township high school, has been elected superintendent of the Virginia community high school and grades.

The Illinois flood relief commission appointed by Governor Small met in Springfield with the Red Cross relief committee to map out the work ahead of them in providing the needed assistance. Both organizations believe that a fund totalling $250,000 is the minimum with which the relief can be provided for the stricken territories. It is estimated that more than 1,000 families are in dire need of help, and will be for months to come. The relief committees believe that 100,000 bushels of seed grain will be required to replant on farms where crops were destroyed when waters inundated the lands. In most instances the farmer is not able financially to provide for replacing the destroyed crops. Thousands of acres in wheat, rye and alfalfa are under water with no other crops possible for this year, according to reports of several local Red Cross committees appointed to make surveys. The committee appointed by the Red Cross for permanent relief is composed as follows: George B. Stadden, Springfield; Walter Davidson, manager of central division, American Red Cross, Springfield; Adjutant General Carlos E. Black, Springfield; C. M. Roos, Cairo; V. Vaniman, University of Illinois, and C. C. Garin, Beardstown.

Home rule and municipal ownership were given to Chicago by the Illinois constitutional convention by the adoption of sections of the Chicago and Cook county article. The home rule section was adopted by the votes of 73 members and the municipal ownership section was approved by a vote of 68 to 13. Progress was made by the convention on other sections of the Chicago report before the session ended. Before the taking up of the Chicago report, the convention practically disposed of the downstate sections of the judiciary article. Important sections approved abolish city courts and consolidate the Probate and County courts in counties where both tribunals are in operation. The convention defeated an amendment providing for the election of Appellate court judges.

Fred M. Rolens of the Independent, Murphysboro, was elected president at the reconstruction convention of the Illinois Press association in Chicago. Other officers elected are: Vice presidents, John H. Harrison, Commercial-News, Danville; J. E. Dertinger, Record, Bushnell; Miss Catherine McLain, Post, La Salle; treasurer, William J. Smith, the Sun, Waukegan; secretary, H. L. Williamson, state superintendent of printing, Springfield; executive committee, S. P. Preston, the News, Gillespie; Charles B. Mead, Republican, Geneva; John M. Sheets, Oracle, Oblong; Paul R. Goddard, Tazewell County Reporter, Washington, and Benjamin S. Herbert, National Printer-Journalist, Chicago.

Holding that the "new" (city hall) Republican county central committee of Cook county had not complied with the law, Secretary of State Emmerson refused to accept the certificate of nomination of Superior judges, signed by Charles R. Francis, committee chairman. Mr. Emmerson held that the call for the Cook county convention, at which the three judges were nominated, was not filed within the time specified by law, according to an opinion of Attorney General Brundage.

Compilation of the official Cook county figures and the unofficial downstate figures of the votes cast at the recent primary indicate that Mrs. Winifred Mason Huck has won the Republican nomination for the congressman at large vacancy caused by the death of her father, William E. Mason, by a scant 2,000 votes. Her closest competitor is Stephen A. Day of Evanston, and not John J. Brown of Vandalia.

Steer riding, roping and other Western sports featured "the Davenport roundup," staged by students of the Agricultural club of the University of Illinois as a farewell party to Eugene Davenport, dean of the college of agriculture, who will sever a 27-year connection with the university at the close of the school year.

Chunks of ore that proved to be almost pure lead were unearthed by a plowman on the farm of William Gast, near Pearl City, and superficial examination of the soil gave such further promising indication of ore that mining experts are being called in.

Reuben S. Bullard, seventy-nine, prominent retired farmer who formerly lived near Mechanicsburg, died in Springfield, at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. C. P. Colby, after an illness of only two days. Death was due to angina pectoris.

To check the scorching of motor cars upon the hard road between Springfield and Bureau via Mason City and Peoria, two motorcycle traffic officers have been appointed. Since the completion of the hard road, accidents due to speeding have been frequent.

A garage and 20 light trucks used by the federal Department of Agriculture in experimental work at Camp Grant were destroyed in a spectacular fire. The loss is estimated at $50,000.

Rev. Charles E. McKinley, for 11 years pastor of the Central Congregational church of Galesburg, has resigned his pulpit to take effect at the option of the congregation.

Bishop P. J. Muldoon of Rockford laid the cornerstone Sunday of a new Catholic church being erected in Pecton. The edifice will cost about $50,000. Rev. William Reedy is pastor.

Yeggmen wrecked the safe at the Northwestern depot in Spring Valley, but fled without loot. A charge of nitroglycerin was left unexploded in the safe.

Melvin A. Traylor, president of the First Trust and Savings bank of Chicago, will deliver the commencement address at Illinois college, Jacksonville, on June 14.

Current Business Conditions GEORGE E. ROBERTS (From the Monthly Bulletin for May Issued by The National City Bank of New York) SENTIMENT in business circles is much more cheerful than at any time last year, and this is especially noteworthy throughout the agricultural districts. Although price conditions are regarded as yet far from satisfactory, and many people still have a keen realization of the losses they have suffered, the country has generally recovered its poise, and is ready to face the future with courage and confidence. Building operations are on a larger scale than a year ago, and sufficient to employ fairly well the workers in the building trades and building material industries. The automobile industry is much more active than a year ago, and contracts for railroad equipment are on a larger scale than at any time since the war. The effect of activity in these several lines has given a pronounced stimulus to the iron and steel industry. For the first two months of the present year, operating revenues of the 201 Class I railroads total $796,323,889, showing a decrease from the like period in 1921 of $30,334,381. Operating expenses, on the other hand, amounted to $662,105,068, were $164,947,673 less. Notwithstanding the heavy falling off in gross, therefore, net operating revenues of $134,718,821 were $84,613,292 greater, and net operating income was $77,304,711, instead of a deficit of $3,626,343 for the first two months of 1921. Coal Strike The nation-wide coal strike has been in effect one month, during which time production from non-union mines has been equal to about one-third the total normal production. As yet accumulated stocks have been sufficient to prevent serious interference with industry or any considerable advance of prices, but if the shut-down shall last another month the influence probably will be more apparent. The situation presented by the coal industry is a very complicated one. The United States Geological Survey said of it: The bituminous coal mines of the United States have a developed capacity and a present labor force far in excess of that required to supply the demand. In consequence the capital and labor engaged in the industry are idle a large part of the time. During the last thirty years the mines have been idle an average of 93 working days in every calendar year. There is no material disagreement about the main facts of the coal industry, and the situation is so simple that it seems strange that so little is said of the remedy that is within the reach of the miners themselves. Since too many workers are seeking employment in the industry, some of them should leave it and find employment elsewhere. It then would be necessary to give regular and approximately full employment for the remainder in order to get out the required supply of coal. The consumers of coal would find that in order to be sure of having an ample supply they would have to lay in stocks. The coal operators would have to settle by competition who should have the miners and the business, upon the condition that the mines were operated all the year round, and the natural solution would be that the most available and easily-worked coal deposits would be worked first. If the miners' union would use its power to promote some such reasonable adjustment as this, it would help the situation of the mine workers and at the same time render a great service to the public. It is urged in some quarters that the mining industry should be taken over by the Government. This, however, would involve purchase of all coal deposits in the country, an impractical undertaking, and if that was done, what policy should the Government follow? Should it continue to divide up the limited amount of work among all the men who claimed a share of it, increasing the pay as the amount of work for each diminished, or should it organize the industry for efficient production, and compel one-third of the miners to find other work? If the latter is the remedy, the miners can apply it themselves, without the intervention of the Government. Would they rather do it of their own choice or under the direction of the Government? Social Progress In the course of the recent hearings upon the coal industry before the Labor Committee of the House of Representatives, Washington, the following colloquy was reported as taking place between Congressman Atkinson, of Missouri, and Edgar Wallace, representative of the Federation of Labor and member of the miners' union: Congressman Atkinson: "Miners were getting up to last week 31 per cent more than they got during the peak of prices during the war, why aren't you willing to skid down a little now when farmers have lost 50 per cent of what they had then?" Mr. Wallace: "Is there any reason why we should, lose because farmers weren't organized?" This retort by Mr. Wallace indicates that he thinks there is nothing to the problem of a living wage but for every group to get control of its own compensation and boost it up for the others to pay. The ambition of organized labor to improve the living conditions of the masses is, of course, praiseworthy, but there are certain truths that must be understood. One of these is that money wages are not to be considered alone in measuring compensation, and another is that the wage bill is not paid by employers in any final sense. In the last analysis the workers in the various industries are working for each other and are paying each other. They are all consumers, and the consumer pays all the costs of production and delivery upon everything he buys. Of late a new phrase has come into circulation, to the effect that there must be not only a "living wage," but a "saving wage." Unfortunately, the people who use it usually are thinking of nothing but an increase of money wages, which means that wages and the cost of living will go up together, leaving the worker no better off than the donkey that follows all day the wisp of hay hung just ahead of his nose. It is time practical men learned that there is no progress, by simply jacking up industrial costs, which carry the cost of living with them. The only broadly distributed gains that ever have come to the masses of the people have come by the improvements in industry that have cheapened and increased production. Such improvements are being made all the time, and the opportunities for them are limitless. The engineers say that the industrial output might be increased from 40 to 100 per cent if industrial friction could be reduced and the best methods now known generally adopted. That would make it possible for wage-earners to have the war-time money-wages and at the same time give each dollar the pre-war purchasing power. That would be genuine progress. Foreign Loans In view of the number of foreign loans granted in this country lately there is a revival of the argument that foreign loans in the United States should be accompanied by an agreement that the proceeds will be expended in this country. In the situation of the United States at the present time the first appropriate comment is that such a regulation would be wholly unnecessary to secure the purpose in view, as present exchange rates virtually give assurance that any credits in this country will be expended here. So long as exchange on the United States is at a premium everywhere, nobody is going to withdraw funds from the United States. To do so would be an act of business folly. If the borrower does not want to use the funds, for purchases here on his own account he can sell them at a premium to somebody who does want to use them here. The premium is proof of that. Moreover, why should we object if Holland, being in good exchange should borrow in this market and turn the resulting credit over to Germany, at a premium, in exchange for German coal or iron? The conditions may be more favorable for Holland to trade direct with Germany than for us to do so. And so there is no limit to the variety of deals and trades by which other countries may arrange to help each other to obtain credits in the United States. Why should we restrict them in doing so? The more regulations we lay upon our foreign trade the less we shall have.

Something to Think About

By F. A. WALKER

THE WRONG KEY

OF THE hapless earthlings who call themselves men and women, thousands are wandering hither and thither in life, trying with the wrong key to unlock the door of fame, success and honor.

If you will observe closely, you will see them every hour endeavoring to force a key into a lock which stubbornly refuses to respond to the violent twists and turns of nervous fingers.

The man who carries the key which will open the door to minor places, where he is sure of earning an independent competence, persists in tampering with locks behind whose paneled door there reposes the coveted chair of manager or president, too big for his occupancy.

Instead of reshaping his key by hard work and high thinking, filling away the roughness to make it smooth, he continues foolishly to waste his time and energy, quite oblivious all the while to what he is really doing.

And so it is frequently with men of talent, too indifferent or indolent to do anything but routine work, when instead they should make use of the key given them by an all-wise Providence, unlock the right door, and rise to greatness.

If persuaded by reason to do this, they would find opportunity waiting with open arms to receive them, glad to round out their lives with happiness and prosperity.

Uncommon Sense

By JOHN BLAKE

YOUR WORK

BY LAZINESS, procrastination, or by pretending to be stupider than you are, you can get quite a good deal of your work done for you—for a while.

If the man above you is quick and competent, he will frequently get so disgusted with you that he will snatch a job out of your hands, and do it himself.

No competent executive will do that, but you can count all the competent executives of your acquaintance on the fingers of one hand.

It will cost you a good deal of trouble to have the hard job taken away from you. You can devote your time to doing the easy jobs at your leisure, and in your own way.

You will probably congratulate yourself on having a boss that is so skillful—so much abler than you—that he can do all the hard work.

But the congratulation will be short-lived. In about a year's time you will discover that you can't do anything but the easy jobs—which are the poorly paid ones, because you never gave your mind any exercise doing the hard ones.

All the opportunities for growth and for progress were in those jobs that were taken out of your hands. Maybe the boss who took 'em away from you didn't need the mental exercise, but the point is that he got it, and you didn't. By letting him take it away you got just as much out of the game as a ball player would whose captain played his position every time there was a critical stage in the game.

No matter what kind of work you have, a time is coming when it is going to become suddenly difficult. The importance of a certain task will increase tremendously owing to unexpected circumstances.

GOOD THINGS FOR THE FAMILY

EVERYBODY in the household likes cinnamon rolls or cinnamon buns. The following is a reliable recipe:

Take one cupful each of milk, water and sugar, two eggs, three-fourths of a cupful of shortening, one yeast cake and a teaspoonful of salt. Scald the milk and while it is still hot pour it over the shortening and add the sugar and hot water; when cool add the yeast cake which has been softened in one-half cupful of water, add the salt and enough flour to make a batter which drops from the spoon. Beat it thoroughly and let stand in a warm place over night. In the morning add the well beaten eggs and flour to make a dough which can be kneaded; knead lightly and well, put back into a well buttered bowl and let rise until double its bulk. Separate into two parts and roll out into a sheet. Spread this with soft butter, brown sugar, cinnamon and well washed and dried currants. Roll in a long roll and cut the buns in inch slices. Place them in a pan and set in a warm place to become light. Bake in a moderate oven with a grate under them if there is danger of burning.

If the family likes sticky buns put one tablespoonful of butter, one-half cupful of brown sugar, one-half cupful of sirup, and one-half cupful of water in a sauce pan and boil until thick. Add currants to it. When the buns are baked turn them upside down and spread this mixture evenly over the sides and bottom of the buns.

Pimento Cheese Rolls.

Roll out a raised dough like the above cinnamon bun mixture, spread with a layer of softened butter, then with pimento cheese. Roll up and cut in slices one inch thick, place cut sides up in a greased pan, let rise until light and bake in a moderate oven.

A good finish for a plain raisin cake is to spread it while hot very generously with butter, then sprinkle with a mixture of cinnamon and powdered sugar, using a teaspoonful of cinnamon to one-half cupful of sugar—more if desired.

SCHOOL DAYS

That is the time that is going to take your measure. If you tackle that harder job and go through with it, the chances are that you will do it well. It is presumed that you have the training.

If you stand aside and let the man above you step in, you might as well make up your mind that you are going to work for the same or less wages for the rest of your days.

For you have repudiated the chance to grow. You have proved yourself a coward.

Some day we may write about the boss who deprives himself of competent help by insisting on doing everybody's work for them. But today we are writing about you.

If you are in the habit of standing back and asking for assistance every time an unusually hard job comes along, get out of it. You will become an assistance-asker for your life. YOUR HAND

How to Read Your Characteristics and Tendencies—the Capabilities or Weaknesses That Make for Success or Failure as Shown in Your Palm

THE HAND OF AN ACTOR

IN THE first place, to recognize whether a person, male or female, is or will be successful on the stage in playing dramatic or tragic parts, note whether the fingers are long and crooked. That is a good sign. Long fingers denote careful attention to details, and if the hand is wide and open, with the fingers widely separated, freedom of thought and independent action are indicated.

The mount of Venus (ball of the thumb) should be well criss-crossed or gridded, to denote inspiration and assumed passion. Next, note whether the second phalanx of the thumb is long, to show intellectual power. The mount of Luna should be unusually long, reaching well up on the outside of the palm toward the line of the heart, to show great imagination and eloquence, so essential to the actor of dramatic or tragic parts. Courage also is shown by a strong mount of Luna.

WOMEN NEED SWAMP-ROOT

Thousands of women have kidney and bladder trouble and never suspect it. Women's complaints often prove to be nothing else but kidney trouble, or the result of kidney or bladder disease.

If the kidneys are not in a healthy condition, they may cause the other organs to become diseased.

Pain in the back, headache, loss of ambition, nervousness, are often times symptoms of kidney trouble.

Don't delay starting treatment. Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a physician's prescription, obtained at any drug store, may be just the remedy needed to overcome such conditions.

Get a medium or large size bottle immediately from any drug store.

However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Advertisement.

HAD SPEECH WITH GOVERNOR

Certainly Short, but the President Gladdened the Heart of This Indiana Small Boy.

When Governor McCray and others boarded an interurban to visit the new reformatory site at Pendleton they found the car already well filled. The governor sat down by a small boy from Fortville and a moment later asked him to exchange seats with another member of the party so that they could continue a conversation. Shortly afterward the lad's seatmate disclosed to the boy that it was the governor he had accommodated.

The incident made an impression and when the boy reached home he boasted to his father that he had seen the governor and had spoken to him.

"Is that so?" said his dad, skeptically, "and what did the governor say to you?"

"Oh," he said, "would you just as soon sit in that seat over there, son?" —Indianapolis News.

NO TIME FOR EXPLANATIONS

Young Woman Simply Felt Herself the Victim of Circumstances, and Went Her Way.

"I was walking along Fourteenth street," said a young woman artist, "and I saw a woman ahead of me pushing a baby carriage. There was a baby in the carriage, and the baby was holding the string of a rubber balloon. I noticed that the balloon was unusually large, probably due to its being inflated beyond its rated capacity.

"Just as I passed the baby carriage the balloon exploded. Went 'Pop!' and disappeared. Apparently the mother was looking some other direction at the time and when she turned her head, saw the balloon was gone and I was going and she connected me with the catastrophe.

"She eyed me malevolently. 'Of all the mean tricks!' she exclaimed, and then attempted to console the balloon-less infant. Did I deny causing the balloon to burst? I did not. I was merely another victim of circumstances."

Predictions. Visionaries are predicting that the airplane will take the place of the auto.

A few years ago they were predicting that the auto would "drive out the horse."

Now comes the government, reporting that the country still has 19,009,000 horses, compared with 10,833,113 in 1910.

We have about 10,000,000 motor-cars, along with nearly twice as many horses as 12 years ago—and find we need both.

That will be the auto's future. Airplanes will fly by millions. Use of autos will increase. The two together will be insufficient to furnish man with enough transportation, one thing we are always behind on.

The Thrifty Citizen Who Caught the Plugged Nickel

MR. BROWN had swallowed his lunch and had paid his bill. Cautiously he counted his change. "Here!" he said, sharply, "Take back this plugged nickel and give me a good one!"

Mr. Brown walked proudly out. They couldn't fool old Brown.

But old Brown had fooled himself.

Brown's day was heavy and dull. He lacked "pep." There was a mid-afternoon drowsy spell when he needed to be awake—the direct and natural result of heavy, starchy breakfasts and lunches, taken on faith and without question as to value—just because the food looked and tasted like food.

Thousands of shrewd business men who count their change, take their food for granted.

That's what builds up the sanitarium business, and puts the tired "all-done" feeling into the mid-afternoon of a business day.

STORE ROBBED

The general merchandise store of F. J. Kohlhausen was entered by robbers Saturday about 3 a. m. They made their entrance by smashing the glass in the front door. Burnt matches and papers were found on the floor. This was the means the persons used to find selected sizes of what they wished to take. Shirts, overalls, hats, suitcases and such were taken. No money was taken, but the property amounts to about $200 or $300.

ong ago Mr. Shaw had left the to Violet and with a curt shrug turned his back and stood looking out over the cove, stroking his chin reflectively. Miss Browne's eloquence had risen to amazing flights, and she already had Mr. Tubbs inextricably mixed with Ananias and Sapphira, when the Scotchman broke in upon her ruthlessly.

"Friends," he said, "so far as I can see we have been put a good bit ahead by this morning's work. First, we know the grave which should be our landmark has not been entirely obliterated by the jungle, as I had thought most likely. Second, we know that it is on this side of the island, for the reason that this chap Tubbs hasn't nerve to go much beyond shouting distance by himself. Third, as Tubbs has tried this hold-up business, I believe we should consider the agreement by which he was to receive a sixteenth share null and void, and decide here and now that he gets nothing whatever. Fourth, the boat is now pretty well to rights, and as soon as we have a snack Bert and Magnus and I will set out, in twice as good heart as before, having had the story that brought us here confirmed for the first time. So Tubbs and his tombstone can go to thunder."

"I can, can I?" cried Mr. Tubbs. "Say, are you a human iceberg, to talk that cool before a man's own face? Say, I'll—"

But Cuthbert Vance broke in.

"Three rousing cheers, old boy!" he cried to the Scotchman enthusiastically. "Always did think that chap a frightful bouncer, don't you know? We'll stand by old Shaw, won't we, Magnus?" Which comradely outbreak showed the excess of the beautiful youth's emotions, for usually he turned a large cold shoulder on the captain, though managing in some mysterious manner to be perfectly civil all the time. Perhaps you have to be born at High Stanton manor or its equivalent to possess the art of relegating people to immense distances without seeming to administer even the gentlest shove.

But unfortunately the effort of the Honorable Cuthbert's cordiality was lost, so far as the object of it was concerned, because of the surprising fact, only now remarked by any one, that Captain Magnus had disappeared.

CHAPTER XIV.

Some Secret Diplomacy.

The evanishment of Captain Magnus, though quite unlooked for at so critical a moment, was too much in keeping with his eccentric and unsocial ways to arouse much comment. Everybody looked about with mild ejaculations of surprise, and then forgot about the matter.

Whistling a Scotch tune, Dugald Shaw set to work again on the boat. In the face of difficulty or opposition he always grew more brisk and cheerful. I used to wonder whether in the event of a tornado he would not warm into positive geniality. Perhaps it would not have needed a tornado, if I had not begun by suspecting him of conspiring against Aunt Jane's pocket, or if the triumvirate, inspired by Mr. Tubbs, had not sat in gloomy judgment on his every movement. Or if he hadn't been reproached so for saving me from the cave, instead of leaving it to Cuthbert Vance—

But now under the stimulus of speaking his mind about Mr. Tubbs the Scotchman whistled as he worked, and slapped the noble youth affectionately on the back when he came and got in the way with anxious industry.

As I wanted to observe developments—a very necessary thing when you are playing Providence—I chose a central position in the shade and pulled out some very smudgy tatting, a sort of Penelope's web which there was no prospect of my ever completing, but which served admirably to give me an appearance of occupation at critical moments.

Mr. Tubbs also had sought a shady spot, and was fanning himself with his helmet. From time to time he hummed, in a manner determinedly gay. However he might disguise it from himself, this time Mr. Tubbs had overshot his mark. The truth was, since our arrival on the island Mr. Tubbs had felt himself the spoiled child of fortune. Aunt Jane and Miss Higglesby-Browne were the joint commanders of the expedition, and he commanded them. The Scotchman's theoretical rank as leader had involved merely the acceptance of all the responsibility and blame, while authority rested with the petticoat government dominated by the bland and wily Tubbs.

But now, faced with the failure of his coup d'état, Mr. Tubbs' situation was, to say the least, awkward. He had risked all and lost it. But he maintained an air of jaunty self-confidence, slightly tinged with irony. It was all very well, he seemed to imply, for us to try to get along without H. H. We would discover the impossibility of it soon enough.

Aunt Jane, drooping, had been led away to the cabin by Miss Higglesby-Browne. You now heard the voice of Violet in exhortation, mingled with Aunt Jane's sobs. I seemed to see that an ear of Mr. Tubbs was cocked attentively in that direction. He had indeed erred in the very wantonness of triumph, for a single glance would have kept Aunt Jane loyal and prodigal of excuses for him in the face of any treachery. Not even Violet could have clapped the lid on the up-welling font of sentiment in Aunt Jane's heart. Only the cold contempting eye of H. H. himself had congealed that tepid flow.

The morning wore on with ever-increasing heat, and as nothing happened I began to find my watchful waiting dull. Crusoe, worn out perhaps by some private nocturnal pig hunt, slept heavily where the drip of the spring over the brim of old Heintz's kettle cooled the air. I began to consider whether it would not be well to take a walk with Cuthbert Vance and discover the tombstone all over again. I knew nothing, of course, of Mr. Tubbs' drastic measures with the celebrated landmark. As to Cuthbert's interrupted courtship, I depended on the vast excitement of discovering the cave to distract his mind from it. For that was the idea, of course—Cuthbert Vance and I would explore the cave, and then whenever I liked I could prick the bubble of Mr. Tubbs' ambitions, without relating the whole strange story of the diary and the Island Queen.

But meanwhile the cave drew me like a magnet. I jealously desired to be the first to see it, to snatch from Mr. Tubbs the honor of discovery. And I wanted to know about poor Peter—and the doubloons that he had gone back to fetch.

But already Captain Magnus had forsaken the post of duty and departed on an unknown errand. Could I ask Cuthbert Vance to do it, too? And then I smiled a smile that was half proud. I might ask him—but he would refuse me. In Cuthbert's simple code, certain things were "done," certain others not. Among the notes was to fail in standing by a friend. And just now Cuthbert was standing by Dugald Shaw. Therefore nods and becks and wreathed smiles were vain. In Cuthbert's quiet, easy-mannered, thick-headed way he could turn his back calmly on the face of love and follow the harsh call of duty even to death. It would not occur to him not to. And he never would suspect himself of being a hero—that would be quite the nicest part of it.

And yet I knew poor Cuthbert was an exploded superstition, an anachronism, part of a vanishing order of things, and that the ideal which was replacing him was a boiler-plated monster with clockwork heart and brain, named Efficiency. And that Cuthbert must go, along with his Jacobean manner, and his family ghost, and the oaks in the park, and everything else that couldn't prove its right to live except by being fine and lovely and full of garnered sweetness of the past.

At this point in my meditations the door of the cabin opened and Miss Browne came out, looking sternly resolute. Aunt Jane followed, very pink about the eyes and nose. With a commanding gesture Miss Browne signalled the rest to approach. Mr. Tubbs bounced up with alacrity. Mr. Shaw and Cuthbert obeyed less promptly, but they obeyed. Meanwhile Violet waited, looking implacable as fate.

"And where is Captain Magnus?" she demanded, glancing about her.

But no one knew what had become of Captain Magnus.

As for myself, I continued to sit in the shade and tat. But I could hear with ease all that was said.

"Mr. Tubbs," began Miss Browne, "your recent claims have been matter of prolonged consideration between Miss Harding and myself. We feel—we cannot but feel—that there was a harshness in your announcement of them, an apparent concentration of your own interests, ill befitting a member of this expedition. Also, that in actual substance, they were excessive. Not half, Mr. Tubbs; oh, no, not half! But one-quarter, Miss Harding and myself, as the joint heads of the Harding-Browne expedition, are inclined to think no more than the reward which is your due. We suggest, therefore, a simple way out of the difficulty. Mr. Dugald Shaw was engaged on liberal terms to find the treasure. He has not found the slightest clue to its present whereabouts. Mr. Tubbs, on the contrary, has found a clue. It is a clue of the first importance. It is equivalent almost to the actual discovery of the chest. Therefore let Mr. Shaw, convinced I am sure by this calm presentation of the matter of the justice of such a course, resign his claim to a fourth of the treasure in favor of Mr. Hamilton H. Tubbs, and agree to receive instead the former allotment of Mr. Tubbs, namely, one-sixteenth."

Having offered this remarkable suggestion, Miss Browne folded her arms and waited for it to bear fruit.

It did—in the enthusiastic response of Mr. Tubbs. "Well, well!" he exclaimed. "To think of our takin' old H. H. that liberal! O' course, havin' formed my habits in the financial centers of the country, I named a stiff price at first—a stiff price, I won't deny. But that's jest the little way of a man used to handlin' large affairs—nothing else to it, I do assure you. The Old Man himself used to say, 'There's old H. H.—you'd think he'd eat the paint off a house, he'll show up that graspin' in a deal. And all the time it's jest love of the game. Let him know he's goin' to win out, and bless you, old H. H. will swing right round and fair force the profits on the other party. H. H. is slicker than soap to handle, if only you handle him right.' Can I say without hard feelin's that jest now H. H. was not handlin' right? Instead o' bein' joshed with, as he looked for, he was took up short, and even then which he might have expected to show confidence"—here Mr. Tubbs cast a reproachful eye at Aunt Jane—"run off with the notion that he meant jest what he said. All he'd done for this expedition, his loyalty and faith to same, was forgotten, and he was thought of as a self-seeker and voracious shark!" The pain of these recollections damned the torrent of Mr. Tubbs' speech.

"Oh, Mr. Tubbs!" breathed Aunt Jane, heart-brokenly, and of course a tear trickled gently down her nose, following the path of many previous tears which had already left their saline traces.

Mr. Tubbs managed in some impossible fashion to roll one eye tenderly at Aunt Jane, while keeping the other fastened shrewdly on the remainder of his audience.

"Miss Higglesby-Browne and Miss Jane Harding," he resumed. "I accept. It would astonish them as has only known H. H. on his financial side to see him agree to a reduction of profits like this without a kick. But I'm a man of impulse, I am. Get me on my soft side and a kitten ain't more impulsive than old H. H. And o' course the business of this expedition ain't jest business to me. It's—er—friendship, and—er—sentiment—in short, there's feelin's that is more than worth their weight in gold!"

At these significant words the agitation of Aunt Jane was extreme. Was it possible that Mr. Tubbs was declaring himself in the presence of others—and was a response demanded from herself—would his sensitive nature, so lately wounded by cruel suspicion, interpret her silence as fatal to his hopes? But while she struggled between maiden shyness and the fear of crushing Mr. Tubbs, the conversation had swept on.

"Mr. Shaw," said Miss Browne, "you have heard Mr. Tubbs, in the interest of the expedition, liberally consent to reduce his claim by one-half. Doubtless, if only in a spirit of emulation, you will attempt to match this conduct by canceling our present agreement and consenting to another crediting you with the former sixteenth share of Mr. Tubbs."

"Don't do it, Shaw—hold the fort, old boy!" broke in Cuthbert Vance. "I say, Miss Browne, this is a bally shame!"

Miss Browne had always treated the prospective Lord Grasmere with distinguished politeness. Even now her air was mild, though lofty.

"Mr. Vance," she replied, "as a member of the British aristocracy, it is not to be supposed that you would view financial matters with the same eye as those of us of the Middle Classes, who, unhappily perhaps for our finer feelings, have been obliged to experience the harsh contacts of common life. Your devotion to Mr. Shaw has a romantic ardor which I cannot but admire. But permit us also our enthusiasm for the perspicacity of Mr. Tubbs, to which we owe the wealth now within our grasp."

RADIO

PROGRESS OF RADIO THROUGH THE YEARS

Wireless Research Began Long Ago, But Development Has Been Swift Lately.

Wireless research started many years ago, as far back even as 1827. Even the radio telephone is not a recent perfection; rather it is that introduction to the layman of the human voice and music has suddenly popularized something that wireless men had thought a pastime or amusement. Here is the chronological record of wireless:

1827—It was found that the magnetic discharge from a leyden jar would magnetize a steel needle.

1831—Electro-magnetic induction was discovered between two entirely separate circuits by Michael Faraday.

1837—Cooke and Wheatstone of London, England, and Morse of the United States take out first patent for electric telegraph.

1838—K. A. Steinhell of Munich suggested that a system of wireless telegraphy could be established after his discovery of the use of the earth return.

1840—Joseph Henry (U. S. A.) produced the first high-frequency electric oscillations, and stated that the condenser discharge is oscillatory.

1842—Wireless experiments were made by S. F. B. Morse by electric conduction through water across Washington canal and across wide rivers.

1843—A wireless system for transatlantic communication was suggested.

1845—Water was used as a conducting medium in wireless experiments across a wide river.

1849—Intelligible signals were actually sent across a river 4,500 feet wide in India, but the cost was found prohibitive for commercial use.

1867—The electric waves that are now utilized in wireless telegraphy and telephony were predicted in an distance of 60 miles by radio signals.

1901—Radio communication started with five islands in the Hawaiian group. The first British ship is fitted with the wireless telegraph.

1902—Radiograph signals received aboard vessels at sea at 1,500 statute miles. Signals received from a distance of 2,000 miles.

1903—King Edward receives a radio message from President Roosevelt. High-power stations were ordered by the Italian government. First transatlantic radio message sent. Telegraphic news service for ships at sea is started. Marconi knighted in Russia.

1904—The first press message was sent across the sea.

1905—Patent suit started in New York between the Marconi and De Forest company.

Patent for horizontal directional aerial is taken out. This was a great step forward in long-distance work.

1906—International conference is held in Berlin, at which most of the countries of the world are represented.

1907—The use of steel disks for producing notes were successfully tested.

Radio stations in Ireland and Nova Scotia were opened for limited public service.

1908—Radio stations opened for unlimited public service between Great Britain and Canada.

1909—Steamship in collision with another off the coast of Florida succeeds in calling assistance by radio.

1910—Marconi receives messages 6,700 miles while on board ship going to South America.

Spanish radio company formed.

1911—Canadian government leased radio stations for 20 years.

1912—Radio distress signals from the Titanic bring assistance and save lives of 700 passengers.

1913—Tests were made between the Eiffel tower in France and the station at Washington. During the trip into Central Asia an explorer received his longitude and time signals from a distant radio station.

1914—Marconi and radio officials start test of wireless telephone between vessels of the Italian fleet. The test was continued between vessels on the high seas and voices were heard with clarity at a distance of 44 miles. One day radio telephone communication was kept up constantly for 12 hours. Great Britain declared war address before the Royal Society in London, England.

1880—The sending of an electric current through earth was systematically studied by John Trowbridge of Harvard. It was found that signaling might be carried on over large distances between places not connected by wires.

1885—It was found that telephonic speech could be conveyed by induction over a space of quarter mile. This experiment took place in England.

1889—Electric waves were suggested as being particularly suitable for the sending of signals through fogs.

1892—An instrument for the detection of electro-magnetic waves was discovered which was given the name of a "coherer."

1894—A scientist of Berlin signaled through three miles of water.

1895—High frequency waves excite curiosity of Senator Marconi.

1896—First patent for practical wireless transmitting system is taken out in London by Marconi. Afterward, successful signaling was carried out over distances as great as one and one-quarter miles. Sir William Preece of the British postoffice system interested his cohorts in Marconi's wireless experiments.

1897—Marconi establishes communication between points four miles distant. Balloons were used to suspend antennae.

Marconi demonstrates his wireless system before the king of Italy, communicating with two Italian warships nine miles distant.

The first Marconi station is erected on the Isle of Wight and experiments conducted over a distance of 14 miles.

Near the end of the year the first floating wireless station was successfully operated.

1898—The first paid marconigram was sent from the Isle of Wight station.

1899—Reports made on lighthouse accident by radio. First French gunboat is fitted with radio apparatus. In Vienna communication between two balloons is established. New York Herald receives radio report of international yacht races. The British war office introduces Marconi apparatus into the South African battlefields.

1900—German vessel communicates a

HAS FIRST WELL DAY IN 6 YEARS

Huntington Citizen Could Neither Sleep Nor Eat With Any Satisfaction Before He Got Tanlac.

"Before taking Tanlac I had not seen a well day in six years," said W. R. Peoples, 328 22nd St., Huntington, W. Va.

"It seemed like I had lost my health for good. I could neither sleep nor eat with satisfaction. I was badly run down, nervous, had no appetite and had to force down every mouthful I ate. Even then my food soured. I would fill up with gas until I had intense pains in my stomach and chest. Headache almost drove me mad, rheumatism in my arms, shoulder and hips kept me in pain all the time, and I had to force myself to work."

"Tanalac went right after my troubles. On four bottles I gained ten pounds and the rheumatism and stomach trouble soon left me. My wife has given a statement about the good Tanlac did her, and I am glad to add my endorsement of this wonderful medicine."

Tanalac is sold by all good druggists.

"Why don't you do as I do? I have never failed to give my wife a birthday present for 25 years, and I'm not out a cent thus far."

"How in the world do you manage it?"

"It's very simple. After we were married, when her birthday came around I gave her a $20 gold piece. When my birthday came around she gave me the $20 piece back, and we have kept that up ever since, and neither of us is out a cent."

A Sentimental Bonus.

A Kansas youngster saw his pretty sister sitting on a bench with a young man in army uniform. BELIEVES IN SCOUTING

Governor W. H. McMaster, who was one of the thirty or more gubernatorial heads who became officially tenderfoot scouts during the twelfth anniversary of the Boy Scouts of America, is a staunch believer in scouting, particularly in the scout oath and law, and even more particularly in the good turn. "There is no investment a boy can make," he told the scouts on the occasion of his investiture, "that is so sure of winning a quick return as kindness," and he went on to suggest that the person most deserving of all of a scout's thoughtfulness and devotion is "mother." He advised every boy to go home and kiss his mother, and to follow up the kiss by doing everything, big or little, that would help her or save her in any way from worry.

IN AN ORPHANAGE

Troop 26 of the Pacific Hebrew orphanage in San Francisco has won a high place under the enthusiastic leadership of Julius I. Kahn. In spite of the fact that the freedom of these boys is somewhat curtailed by the conditions of institutional life, they manage to get in some hiking and camping and are splendid "good turners." Scout Harry Pepper was voted the troop winner in a good turn contest for the year 1921. The act which won him this honor by vote of the troop is as follows: The boys were expected to clean up a hall which had been left littered and disorderly after an entertainment. What was their surprise, therefore, the next morning to find the hall as clean as if the brownies had been at work all night. But Harry Pepper was the brownie. He had spent his good hours working while the others slept.

MEDALS ASKED FOR LIVE SAVER

Application has been made to the national court of honor for a life-saving medal to be awarded to Eugene McGlone, a student of Centenary college at Shreveport, La., who saved the life of Sam Brand at the risk of his own in February last. The two boys were on a raft which broke, letting them down into the water. McGlone could swim, but Brand could not. McGlone pushed a log to his friend and towed him to shore.

Why Castoria?

YEARS ago Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Soothing Syrups were the remedies in common use for Infants and Children; Castor Oil so nauseating as to be almost impossible and the others all containing Opium in one form or another, but so disguised as to make them pleasant to the taste, yet really to stupefy the child and give the appearance of relief from pain.

It required years of research to find a purely vegetable combination that would take the place of these disagreeable, unpleasant and vicious remedies that from habit had become almost universal. This was the inception of, and the reason for, the introduction of Fletcher's Castoria, and for over 30 years it has proven its worth, received the praise of Physicians everywhere and become a household word among mothers.

A remedy ESPECIALLY prepared for Infants and Children and no mother would think of giving to her baby a remedy that she would use for herself, without consulting a physician.

Gent of the Old School.
Gipsies apparently do not take much stock in the newer feminist theories. A swarthy nomad and his gaily-dressed wife came into a cigar store on Cadillac square. He bought some good cigars for himself and a package of pipe tobacco for her. She demonstrated with him in gipsy language about something, turned her back to him and started for the door. His face clouded with anger, he raised his large foot and administered a lusty kick—that was forceful enough to send her through the swinging doors. She made no protest and they walked away together.—Detroit News.

Best feature of the admiration of the people for art is that they don't pick laws in the technique.

It isn't the henpecked husband who lays for his wife.

voice over the wire. It will make a better day for you both

Ask operator for rates and other information. "Station-to-station" calls are about twenty-five per cent less than "person-to-person" calls. On a "station-to-station" call you talk to anyone who answers the distant telephone. Of course that person can call mother to the telephone.

Evening and night rates for "station-to-station" calls are still further reduced.

Mokena will Have Team

Mokena is going to have a real honest-to-goodness baseball team this Summer. The boys are much interested in it, and practice games were held on the Henry Yunker diamond Sunday morning and afternoon. Soon as the team is in good trim, they will play all the neighboring teams.
The Mokena boys will try and get up a good strong team and try and get back the honors they had some years ago of one of the best teams in the country.

The dog came home about 11 o'clock at night whining, and upon examination it was found it had been shot. It is thought a rifle was used, as the wound is wide and jagged. Mr. Wachter is willing to give a reward leading to the identity of the person doing the shooting.
